THE complaints of terrible suffering and darvation throughout many counties, and especially in the West District, continue to be cabled from Ireland. The suffering is known to be due solely to the lack of proper food, and in many cases it has reached to almost absolute starvation. The food is as poor as it is scarce, and disease once started develops and spreads with great rapidity, since the sufferers have nothing with which to build upon. To such an extent has the trouble grown in some districts that the ocal boards have passed resolutions attracting the attention of the Lord Lieutenant to the distress and to the great increase in fever cases, and asking that relief measures
